(YU) In anticipation of a predictably unpredictable promise of an alleged “major announcement” by Donald Trump, several anonymous sources close to his ever-shrinking inner circle have leaked a draft of a handwritten note by the soon-to-be indicted ex-president in which he declares the complete and permanent dismantling of his election campaign and his wholehearted endorsement of Florida Governor Ron DeSantis as the Republican Party’s 2024 presidential nominee.

“After very little thought on my part,” the note reads, “it’s clear that the only real chance of getting a full and unconditional pardon for all past, present and future crimes—which I may or may not have committed depending on any number of witch hunts (TAKE YOUR PICK!)—is if a certain Republican governor becomes the next president. I know lots of Italians who can get the job done quickly and quietly. But none better than Ron DeSantis. AMERICA NEEDS A SUPERHERO TO PULL THIS OFF!”

A spokesstug for DeSantis was unavailable for cement.
